My sincerest condolences go out to Toot's family and friends. I never got the chance to meet him, and we had talked about it a couple times over the internet. I don't remember when, but a few years ago our paths crossed as we're both into the weather, and we became online friends. The internet is a strange place, but his personality came across so strong and clear. I wish I could have made friends with him as I see he and I had a lot in common. His passion for weather, his love of outdoors and his down home personality and hilarious jokes....not a day went by that I didn't laugh at something he shared on FB. So even though we never met, I'm so glad to have discovered him in this way. I bet many of his online friends sort of feel the same way. May God comfort his friends and family and rest assured knowing how much he was loved and admired. He seemed to be one in a million.
